

A new partnership for the future

Alicia Bárcena, Jutta Urpilainen

Created: Jul 06, 2021 08:00 AM

0 Comments

 Share

 Tweet

 Share

 Print

First Prev 1 2 Next Last

Alicia Bárcena is the Executive Secretary of the United Nations Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean

Related Stories

- » Why Freedom Square matters
- » Twelve steps towards reducing our plastic addiction
- » Monarchy or republic – which do we want to be?
- » Facebook gives dangerous extremists a free pass
- » Democracy and the free press

Recovery from the coronavirus disease crisis is a global challenge. No country, no region, no continent can face it alone. It is therefore right for the European Union and Latin America and the Caribbean to strengthen our strategic partnership towards a more sustainable, inclusive and equal world.

The human toll of the Covid-19 pandemic in our regions has been dramatic. As of June 15, 2021, a total of 732,000 people in the European Union and 1.21 million people in Latin America and the Caribbean have lost their lives.

Covid-19 has also thrown Latin America and the Caribbean into its worst economic recession in 120 years, with more than one third of its 650 million population now living in poverty.

The pandemic is magnifying structural challenges through inequality, informality and low productivity. This could cancel out more than a decade of development progress. In Latin America and the Caribbean, unemployment is expected to rise to more than 33 million people, affecting women and young people in particular.

Governments in the region have already made unprecedented fiscal efforts to cushion the blow. Public debt has jumped by more than ten points, to reach 79.3 per cent of gross domestic product.

However, tackling the pandemic and stabilising the economy will mean more spending in 2021.

The European Commission has called for a Global Recovery Initiative, linking debt relief to investment in the Sustainable Development Goals. And yet, Latin America and the Caribbean have received limited multilateral support. This is because middle-income countries are not eligible for the Group of 20 Debt Service Suspension Initiative or its Common Framework for Debt Treatment.

Against this backdrop, the European Commission and the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean are calling for a paradigm shift in development co-operation, in line with the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. Classifications based solely on income-per-capita criteria do not reflect the whole range of a country’s multidimensional vulnerabilities, structural gaps and financing needs. Income alone is not sufficient to determine the inclusion or exclusion of countries from global co-operation mechanisms neither during this crisis or those linked to climate change, environmental degradation and loss of biodiversity.

The European Commission and ECLAC will work to renew biregional political dialogue for a renewed partnership based on three pillars.

The first is moving towards sustainable development models, with equality at the centre. Addressing climate change and the transition to sustainable patterns of production and consumption must be a development priority.

The second is promoting a stronger and more inclusive multilateral system. This should include mechanisms to facilitate access to financing for sustainable investment, a strengthened rules-based trading system, and a renewed commitment to climate action.

The third, to be effective, is facilitating access and development of green and digital technologies.

Latin America, the Caribbean and Europe enjoy a longstanding partnership. We share the belief that co-operation and partnerships are the main tools to solve global challenges. Now is the time to join forces to shape a better future for all.

• Alicia Bárcena is the Executive Secretary of the United Nations Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean. Jutta Urpilainen is the Commissioner for International Partnerships of the European Commission

 Share

 Tweet

 Share

 Print

Comments

Published July 06, 2021 at 8:00 am (Updated July 05, 2021 at 5:25 pm)

You must be registered or signed-in to post comment or to vote.

A new partnership for the future

What
you
Need to Know

1. For a smooth experience with our commenting system we recommend that you use Internet Explorer 10 or higher, Firefox or Chrome Browsers. Additionally please clear both your browser's cache and cookies - How do I clear my cache and cookies?
2. Please respect the use of this community forum and its users.
3. Any poster that insults, threatens or verbally abuses another member, uses defamatory language, or deliberately disrupts discussions will be banned.
4. Users who violate the Terms of Service or any commenting rules will be banned.
5. Please stay on topic. "Trolling" to incite emotional responses and disrupt conversations will be deleted.
6. To understand further what is and isn't allowed and the actions we may take, please read our Terms of Service
7. To report breaches of the Terms of Service use the flag icon

What do you think?

0 Responses

Upvote

Funny

Love

Surprised

Angry

Sad

0 Ratings

★★★★★ 0.0

0 Comments

The Royal Gazette

Disqus' Privacy Policy

Login ▾

Recommend

Tweet

Share

Sort by Newest ▾

Rate and comment ★★★★★

Start the discussion...

LOG IN WITH

OR SIGN UP WITH DISQUS

Name

Email

Password

Please access our Privacy Policy to learn what personal data Disqus collects and your choices about how it is used. All users of our service are also subject to our Terms of Service.

Be the first to comment.

Subscribe

Add Disqus to your siteAdd DisqusAdd

Do Not Sell My Data

81F

Mostly cloudy

Click here for detailed forecast

Preferred Posts

Next
Previous

Get Back to Work with A.F. Smith

