Overall orientation

18.1 The overall purpose of the programme is to promote economic, social and environmentally sustainable development in Latin America and the Caribbean through international cooperation, by undertaking comprehensive research and analyses of development processes and providing the relevant normative, operational and technical cooperation services to member States in support of regional development efforts.

18.2 The mandate for the programme, which falls within the purview of the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean (ECLAC), derives from resolution 106 (VI) of the Economic and Social Council, by which the Council established the Commission for the purpose of contributing to and coordinating action towards the economic and social development of the region and reinforcing economic relationships among the countries of the region as well as worldwide. In 1996, pursuant to Council resolution 553 (XXVI), the Commission was entrusted, inter alia, with collaborating with member States in analysing the development process of formulating, evaluating and monitoring public policies to provide operational services on specialized information, advisory services, training and support in regional and international cooperation.

18.3 The Commission will continue to pursue key objectives shared by all the regional commissions, to support the development pillar of the United Nations, to foster economic integration at the regional and subregional levels, to promote the implementation of internationally agreed development goals beyond 2015, in continuation of the Millennium Development Goals, and to support sustainable development by helping to bridge economic, social and environmental gaps between and among countries in the region and the industrialized economies.

18.4 To achieve these objectives, ECLAC will continue to respond to the needs of the countries in the region, serving as a regional forum and facilitator in building regional consensus, supporting public policy formulation to meet the challenges facing the region and conducting and promoting multilateral dialogue, sharing knowledge and networking at the global, regional and subregional levels. The Commission will promote intraregional and interregional cooperation among regional commissions and collaborate with other regional organizations, particularly with United Nations entities.

18.5 The overall strategy of the Commission for achieving the objectives of the programme is structured around 13 interdependent and complementary subprogrammes, implemented through an integrated and multidisciplinary approach. In formulating the present biennial programme plan, the strategic framework for the biennium 2014-2015 was drawn from the priorities and agreements stemming from the major United Nations conferences and summits in the economic, social and environmental fields, including those deriving from the United Nations Millennium Declaration, the 2005 World Summit Outcome and the regional and subregional summits. Special efforts have been made to ensure that the gender mainstreaming strategy of the Commission is reflected throughout the 13 subprogrammes of the present biennial programme plan.

18.6 During the period 2010-2011, the economies of Latin America and the Caribbean continued to recover from the global financial and economic crisis whose fallout spread across the region in the second half of 2008 and in 2009. After contracting in 2009, gross domestic product (GDP) expanded by 5.9 per cent in Latin America and the Caribbean in 2010 and is projected to grow by 4.3 per cent in 2011, lower than the rate in 2010, albeit with the region's hallmark differences in performance from one country to another. The upturn that began late in 2009 and gained unexpected momentum in 2010 developed into a full-blown recovery that was without precedent in the world economy, sustained by the macroeconomic policies implemented by the countries in the region. The recovery carried over into 2011, although economic growth subsided in response to both external and domestic factors. The slowdown in regional growth steepened in the second half of the year, reflecting slackening export growth, falling prices for the main export commodities of the region — which nonetheless remained at historically high levels — and cooling domestic demand. For 2012, regional per capita GDP is projected to grow by 3.7 per cent, notwithstanding the deterioration in external conditions and, on the domestic front, complex policy challenges arising from dilemmas over the direction of certain macroeconomic variables.

18.7 Leading composite indicators show that slower growth in the industrialized countries is starting to act as a drag on the main emerging economies. If these trends continue, regional exports to Europe and the United States will slow down in 2012 and 2013 and export growth in economies where exports depend heavily on those markets would be jeopardized. As growth decelerates in the emerging economies and the industrialized economies show increasing weakness, international commodity prices could fall, adversely affecting the trade and current account balances of net commodity exporters. These circumstances would present a number of risks and difficulties, both in the short term and in the medium and longer terms. Economic turbulence and high unemployment in the industrialized economies may prompt a resurgence of protectionist forces and reduce the margin for new initiatives responding to the challenges of globalization, such as the conclusion of the Doha Round, the discussions on a new international financial architecture and a new framework for globally reducing emissions of greenhouse gases. This augurs great uncertainty for 2012 and thus the Latin American and Caribbean economies will have to strengthen their efforts towards macroeconomic prudence. In these circumstances, regional economies will have to strengthen macroeconomic management, pursue sustainable fiscal and external accounts, reinforce macroprudential measures related to financial flows and steer their policy decisions with reference to the long-term behaviour of their main economic variables. Prudential macroeconomic management must be complemented with a concerted effort on further regional cooperation. Policies should also be put into place to drive productivity to bring countries closer to the international productivity frontier and develop a more dynamic structure that will serve as an engine of growth and learning.

18.8 Under such circumstances, the social gaps in the region are expected to face an ambivalent scenario, combining on the one hand structural backward trends that reinforce them and on the other, more recent, favourable developments that open up new possibilities for moving towards societies that are less unequal, with broader access to well-being. Poverty and inequality are decreasing, mainly due to active social public policies aimed at protecting employment, rising labour income and increasing public transfers to the most vulnerable sectors. The estimated poverty rate for the region in 2011 was 30.4 per cent, including 12.8 per cent living in extreme poverty or indigence. In absolute terms, these figures translate into 174 million poor people, of whom 73 million were indigent. The figures show that, in the wake of the 2009 crisis, economic recovery has been reflected (at least partially) in the poverty indicators.

18.9 Productivity gaps remain rigid, and there is still little social mobility for specific groups in low-productivity sectors (especially women in lower-income socio-economic groups) whose income has not increased. Fertility is declining substantially, which can mean greater possibilities for well-being in families with fewer dependants. However, the fertility structure is still stratified by socio-economic and education levels, which means that poor households have higher levels of reproduction. Furthermore, adolescent fertility has fallen at a much more moderate pace than total fertility. In many of the countries of the region it even rose during the 1990s, while the total fertility rate declined significantly. The inequality in fertility between groups with different education levels is usually particularly marked in the case of adolescent mothers. Governments have increased social spending and social protection in recent years to mitigate the impacts of the 2008-2009 crisis on the most vulnerable sectors. Nonetheless, the social protection systems in the region are far from being inclusive and have gaps that reproduce vulnerability and stratified access to social security. Latin America's weak social protection systems are facing tremendous redistributive challenges, with limited fiscal capacity and relatively rigid, if any, architecture of well-being. Any systemic approach should also draw on the contributory pillar and on targeted policies to link rights with progress towards truly universal and solidarity-based protection systems.

18.10 Lastly, global challenges such as climate change and the need to develop low-carbon economies urgently require the implementation of new strategies to foster adaptation, mitigation and risk reduction, as well as to enhance energy efficiency and jump-start the broad use of renewable energies. In the post-crisis context, the roles of institutions and market regulations need to be revised and the role of the State must be redefined to generate the conditions for sustainable and inclusive development that would bring the region onto a new path of sustainable development with equality. During the period 2014-2015, the challenges will be to implement the agreements derived from the sixteenth and seventeenth sessions of the Conference of the Parties to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change, held in Cancun, Mexico, from 29 November to 10 December 2010 and in Durban, South Africa, from 28 November to 9 December 2011 respectively.

18.11 In 2010, at the thirty-second session of ECLAC, member States adopted a position document entitled "Time for equality: closing gaps, opening trails", which attempts to summarize a revised development agenda for Latin America and the Caribbean. The document puts forward an integrated vision of development in keeping with the times, drawing on historical lessons and entailing far-reaching changes. This vision has laid the groundwork for further discussion of policy content and proposals and is expected to guide the work of the Commission in the coming years. In 2012, ECLAC will present to member States policy proposals to link macroeconomic instruments with productive sustainable development and with equality at the centre.

18.12 Considering the complexity of the reform processes in the region and the rapidly evolving demands from member States, ECLAC will continue to provide timely and relevant analysis and policy recommendations regarding development issues. The Commission will work closely with the Governments in the region and other counterpart institutions to safeguard linkages between individual national experiences and regional perspectives, facilitate data comparability and exchange of good practices, and provide effective technical cooperation services for transboundary issues within its purview.

18.13 To meet the challenges referred to above, ECLAC will focus its programme of work in the biennium 2014-2015 on the following priorities:

(a) Improving macroeconomic stability and further enhancing policies that reduce vulnerability and mitigate the effects of economic and financial crises;

(b) Strengthening the region's access to financing for development and enhancing the financial architecture at the global, regional and domestic levels;

(c) Increasing the productive potential of the region and reducing productivity gaps to achieve convergence with a particular emphasis on innovation and new technologies;

(d) Improving the position of the region in the international economy through trade, regional integration and cooperation;

(e) Promoting a social covenant by improving social equality, reducing social risks and reinforcing gender mainstreaming in public policies;

(f) Promoting sustainable development policies and energy efficiency and addressing the impacts of climate change, taking into account the outcome of the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development, to be held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, from 20 to 22 June 2012, to facilitate implementation, reducing vulnerability in key sectors;

(g) Strengthening public management to enhance the role of the State in the twenty-first century, particularly through progressive fiscal policies;

(h) Improving institution-building related to the management of global and transboundary issues and the provision of public goods at the regional level.

18.14 To that end, the Commission will emphasize analytical, normative, advocacy and capacity-building work to strengthen the design of sustainable development strategies and public policies and to facilitate the continuous monitoring of their practical implementation. Operational services in the areas of specialized information, technical cooperation and training will foster cooperation, networking and sharing of good practices at the subregional, regional and international levels, including South-South cooperation.

18.15 ECLAC will continue to work on an integrated and comprehensive follow-up to the world summits from a regional perspective, in particular the region's final progress towards the Millennium Development Goals in 2015, as well as the renovated development agenda for the region, which stems from the reflection on beyond 2015 topics and the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development in 2012. For that purpose, ECLAC will reinforce its leading role as the convener of the regional coordination mechanism to coordinate the work programme of the specialized agencies, funds and programmes of the United Nations system in the region, which report to the Economic and Social Council and to the General Assembly. It will continue its active participation to enhance substantive coordination among all participating entities in the Executive Committee on Economic and Social Affairs.

18.16 ECLAC will continue serving as the technical secretariat for various intergovernmental initiatives, such as the Committee of the Whole, the Statistical Conference of the Americas of ECLAC, the Regional Conference on Women in Latin America and the Caribbean, the Regional Council for Planning of the Latin American and Caribbean Institute for Economic and Social Planning (ILPES), the Committee of High-level Government Experts, the Central American Economic Cooperation Committee, the Caribbean Development and Cooperation Committee, the ECLAC Ad Hoc Committee on Population and Development, and the Regional Plan of Action for the Information Society in Latin America and the Caribbean (eLAC 2007).

18.17 Collaboration will also be continued with the International Monetary Fund (IMF), the World Bank and other inter-American, Ibero-American and Bretton Woods institutions, such as the Organization of American States (OAS), the Ibero-American Secretariat, and the Inter-American Development Bank (IADB).

18.18 Furthermore, ECLAC will collaborate closely with new emerging regional mechanisms, such as the Community of Latin American and Caribbean States and the Union of South American Nations (UNASUR), and reinforce cooperation with the Caribbean Community (CARICOM), the Latin American Integration Association, the Common Southern Market (MERCOSUR) and the Central American Integration System. ECLAC will also strengthen its collaboration with private sector associations, non-governmental organizations, think tanks and the academic sector to promote policy dialogue and to engage them in the implementation of the sustainable development agenda.

18.19 The Commission will also continue to engage with the Executive Committee on Economic and Social Affairs as a key global mechanism for ensuring coherence on common thematic areas among entities of the United Nations Secretariat working in the social and economic sectors.

The main beneficiaries of the subprogramme will be government authorities and officials of the countries of the region, especially those concerned with the formulation, implementation and management of social policies, programmes and projects, as well as regional and subregional organizations, universities and other academic institutions, research centres and non-governmental organizations.

18.44 The subprogramme will also serve as a forum and catalyst for policy dialogue in relation to the regional agenda for poverty eradication, social protection systems with a human rights and gender approach, and reduction of inequalities. Member States will benefit from increased visibility of the subprogramme through the continuous updating and development of the Commission website and databases and wide dissemination of its main publications and findings among policymakers, academics and other stakeholders, both within and outside the region.

18.45 Lastly, the subprogramme's work and achievements will be broadly shared with its beneficiaries through the continuous updating and development of the Commission's website and databases, wide dissemination of its main publications and findings in international events and key forums involving relevant policymakers, academia and other stakeholders at international events and key forums, both within and outside the region.

Strategy

18.46 The Division for Gender Affairs will be responsible for the implementation of the subprogramme. In light of the interdisciplinary nature of mainstreaming the gender perspective in regional development, the Division will work in close coordination with and provide support to ECLAC divisions, subregional and national offices as requested, as part of the implementation of the gender mainstreaming strategy of the Commission. This implies incorporating the gender perspective into the different programmes of work of the organization. The objectives will be pursued within the framework of the internationally agreed instruments and mandates.

18.47 The subprogramme will support the activities of member States of the Regional Conference on Women in Latin America and the Caribbean and of the presiding officers of the Conference in their efforts to generate new knowledge on gender indicators and statistics, and contribute to strengthening the capacity of countries in the region for developing and collecting gender statistics to inform decision-making, in particular with regard to women's economic empowerment. It will also support Governments in building evidence-based policies for gender equality.

18.48 Under the subprogramme, the Division will collaborate with the countries of the region to develop strategies for mainstreaming the gender perspective in national policies, including their formulation, implementation and monitoring, using statistics and gender indicators.

18.49 In particular, the Division will seek to strengthen relations between producers and users of gender statistics through increased knowledge-sharing to shed light on the nature of current regional problems. Research findings and indicators will be used to construct public policies for the economic empowerment of women.

18.50 Lastly, member States will benefit from the use of the Gender Equality Observatory for Latin America and the Caribbean and from the wide dissemination of the main publications and findings of the subprogramme among policymakers, academics and other stakeholders at international events and key forums, both within and outside the region.

Strategy

18.51 The Latin American and Caribbean Demographic Centre (CELADE), the Population Division of ECLAC, will be responsible for the implementation of the subprogramme. It will work in close collaboration with other ECLAC divisions, in particular the Social Development Division (providing inputs and drafting sections of the flagship publication Social Panorama); the Division for Gender Affairs (providing inputs for the Gender Observatory and carrying out joint studies); the Statistics Division (supporting the Statistical Conference of the Americas, liaising for the maintenance of relevant information on the CEPALSTAT website and carrying out joint studies with the social statistics section); the Division for Sustainable Development and Human Settlements (providing inputs for studies and publications on human settlements and the linkages between population issues and sustainable development) and the subregional office in Port of Spain (supporting population activities in the Caribbean, particularly those related to census taking, REDATAM (REtrieval of DATA for small Areas by Microcomputer) development, ageing and international migration).

18.52 Its strategy will be:

- (a) To continue to serve as technical secretariat for the Ad Hoc Committee on Population and Development;
- (b) To provide training on demography and population studies to technical staff in national institutions in order to enhance the capacity of countries in the region to monitor population trends and tackle population and development issues;
- (c) To provide support to the countries of the region in the follow-up to the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development, in fulfilment of the Strategy for the Implementation in Latin America and the Caribbean of the Madrid International Plan of Action on Ageing and in monitoring the goals and objectives deriving from the Millennium Declaration and other relevant international conference outcomes related to population issues.

18.53 In order to help the region to tackle these challenges, specialized advisory and technical cooperation services will be provided and workshops and seminars will be held to facilitate horizontal cooperation, networking and sharing of successful experiences in the design of intervention activities tailored to the individual needs of each country. In addition, applied research and analysis, including recommendations on how to reduce inequalities, will be developed and disseminated through publications serving as reference material for countries. ICT will be used to disseminate sociodemographic data widely in order to make the outputs of the subprogramme available as a public good.

18.54 The main users of the outputs will be government authorities and officials and national statistical offices of the countries of the region, particularly those working on issues related to population in the ministries of planning, social programming, health, education, gender and housing. Other users will include public, private and civil society entities responsible for the design and management of programmes, policies and projects at the national and local levels in various areas related to population, as well as universities and other academic institutions.

18.55 The subprogramme will work closely in coordination with the Population and Statistics Divisions of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs of the United Nations and the other entities of the Executive Committee on Economic and Social Affairs that participate in the population cluster, and with specialized bodies such as the United Nations Population Fund, the Pan-American Health Organization (PAHO), the World Health Organization, the United Nations Children's Fund, ILO, the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women, the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the United Nations Human Settlements Programme (UN-Habitat), and with intergovernmental organizations such as OAS, the International Organization for Migration, the World Bank, the Ibero-American Youth Organization, IADB and the Ibero-American General Secretariat. Part of the inter-institutional collaboration will focus on sharing, refining and harmonizing methodologies for population estimates and projections, as well as child mortality and maternal mortality estimations. CELADE will continue to be the lead entity in Latin America and the Caribbean in the inter-agency working group on international migration.

18.56 Finally, the work and achievements of the subprogramme will be broadly shared with its beneficiaries through the continuous provision of sociodemographic data as a regional public good by means of updating and development of the CELADE website and databases, wide dissemination of its main publications and findings in international events and key forums involving relevant policymakers, academia and other stakeholders, both within and outside the region.

Subprogramme 8 Sustainable development and human settlements

(b) Enhanced capacity of the Governments of the region and other stakeholders to follow up on and make progress in the implementation of international agreements relating to sustainable development and urban development	(b) Increased number of Governments of the region and other stakeholders that follow up on and make progress in the implementation of international agreements relating to sustainable development, including urban development, in line with ECLAC recommendations

Strategy

18.57 The Sustainable Development and Human Settlements Division will be responsible for the implementation of the subprogramme and will work in close coordination with other ECLAC divisions and offices in order to mainstream the comprehensive approach to sustainable development in the work programme of the Commission, in particular with respect to climate change and Goal 7 of the Millennium Development Goals (Ensure environmental sustainability). Regarding interdivisional cooperation, the many linkages and joint activities with other ECLAC divisions include fiscal policy with the Economic Development Division and ILPES; low-carbon economies (including urban transport and energy) with the Natural Resources and Infrastructure Division; and climate change linked to land-use change, deforestation and food security with the Division of Production, Productivity and Management. In the framework of the new strategy on gender mainstreaming, new low-carbon economic activities, such as those linked to the care economy, will be explored with the Division for Gender Affairs and carbon footprint issues with the International Trade and Integration Division. Cooperation with ECLAC subregional and national offices will mainly focus on climate change issues, such as the economics of climate change and risk reduction.

18.58 Key milestones in the process at the political and institutional levels will be the regional implementation forum on sustainable development, to be jointly organized by ECLAC and the Commission on Sustainable Development, or an equivalent forum based on the institutional reforms to be agreed upon at the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development; the processes of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change; and the follow-up to the agreements under the regional plan of action of the Regional Meeting of Ministers and High-level Authorities of the Housing and Urban Development Sector in Latin America and the Caribbean and the Forum of Ministers of the Environment of Latin America and the Caribbean.

18.59 At the operational level, lines of work will reflect synergies between different types of activities, namely the preparation of national case studies, the provision of technical assistance and training courses, the organization of regional and subregional discussion forums, and the promotion of political dialogue at the country level. The scope of the subprogramme will encompass the integration of public policies and institution-building for environmental management, including urban and land-use issues. Climate change will serve as the pivotal element of the subprogramme around which most of the activities will be structured. Lastly, the efficient execution of the subprogramme will require a relatively high degree of flexibility for addressing the changing environment in which activities take place.

18.60 The main beneficiaries of the subprogramme will be the decision-making authorities responsible for sustainable development and those responsible for human settlements. Economic and sectoral authorities are an important target group for mainstreaming sustainable development and climate change issues into areas that extend beyond environmental institutions. Other beneficiaries include regional and subregional organizations, universities, academic research centres and business sectors and non-governmental organizations with an interest in the aforementioned areas. The strategy will also include creating networks with a wide range of stakeholders in the environmental sphere and the economic and social sectors relating to climate change, including government institutions, civil society organizations, private sector representatives and relevant sectoral bodies.

18.61 In implementing the subprogramme, the Division will continue to hold consultations and undertake joint actions with the specialized agencies, programmes and funds of the United Nations system, including UNDP, the United Nations Environment Programme and UN-Habitat, as well as with regional and subregional development banks that deal with environmental issues. These linkages will guarantee coordination with United Nations bodies and joint actions.

18.62 Lastly, member States will benefit from the increased visibility of the work of the subprogramme through the continuous updating and development of the Commission website and databases, and wide dissemination of its main publications and findings among policymakers, academics and other stakeholders at international events and key forums, both within and outside the region.

In particular, the Natural Resources and Infrastructure Division will cooperate with the Division of International Trade and Integration on issues concerning obstacles to international transport and trade logistics affecting transport and trade facilitation, and with the Financing for Development Division on studies for closing the infrastructural gap in the region.

18.64 The joint work with the Sustainable Development and Human Settlements Division will be undertaken through the discussion and preparation of studies and events relating to low-carbon economies and climate change impact assessment in the countries of the region. The work of the subprogramme will also involve coordinating with the Division for Gender Affairs to gradually include a gender perspective, building on existing efforts.

18.65 The strategy will include providing stakeholders of the region with analytical studies and systematized information and data on the regulation and management of natural resources and the provision of public utility and infrastructure services in the context of the Millennium Development Goals.

18.66 Priority will be given to the provision of technical assistance services to countries, at their request, in the spheres of regulation and management of energy and mineral and water resources, with particular emphasis on the economic and social impacts of climate change, environmental and energy sustainability and regulation of public utility and infrastructure services delivery. Support will be given to discussion forums to disseminate new policy options and the functioning of knowledge networks for sharing good practices and lessons learned. The subprogramme will also include training activities for decision makers, public officials and experts in the above-mentioned areas.

18.67 The main users of this subprogramme will be government authorities and officials of countries in the region, especially those concerned with management for the sustainable development of natural resources, energy issues, infrastructure and transport services. Other users will include regional and subregional organizations, universities, academic research centres and technical and professional, labour and business organizations. Under the subprogramme, the Division will continue to consult and work in close collaboration with United Nations specialized agencies, programmes and funds which participate in the Commission on Sustainable Development and other organizations concerned with the areas of mining, energy and water resources, including the Latin American Energy Organization, the Latin American Organization for Mining, the Latin American Parliament, UNASUR, MERCOSUR, the Initiative for the Regional Integration of the Infrastructure in South America, the OAS Committee on Ports, the International Association of Maritime Economists, the Central American Commission on Maritime Transport and bilateral and multilateral organizations such as the World Bank, IADB, the Andean Development Corporation and the Fund for the Plata Watershed, the Water Regulators' Association of the Americas, CARICOM and the Mesoamerica Project (formerly known as the Puebla-Panama Plan), among others.

18.68 Lastly, the Division will ensure broad visibility of its work and major achievements through the continuous updating and development of its website and databases, wide dissemination of its main publications and findings in international events and relevant conferences, as well as participation in key forums involving relevant policymakers, academia and other stakeholders, both within and outside the region.

Strategy

18.69 Responsibility for the implementation of the subprogramme rests with ILPES, which acts as the Commission training centre. Consequently, ILPES will work in close coordination with other ECLAC divisions, subregional and national offices, considering the reduction of inequalities in its various dimensions in the region as a guiding, articulating principle. The subprogramme will coordinate with the Division for Gender Affairs to include a gender perspective in its work, particularly in development policies, building on existing advances.

18.70 The strategy to be followed will take into account the emerging demands from member countries and in particular the relevant provisions of the internationally agreed development goals, including those set forth in the outcomes of the major United Nations conferences and summits in the economic and social fields and those deriving from the Millennium Declaration and the 2005 World Summit Outcome.

18.71 The activities to be implemented by ILPES will include comprehensive training and technical cooperation services for Governments and other relevant stakeholders, applied research and the development of knowledge networks among stakeholders, particularly those relating to public sector performance in the region. ILPES will undertake significant new initiatives in order to consolidate its position as the principal training centre in planning and public management in the region. Training beneficiaries and network membership will increase as a result of a more extensive use of e-learning techniques and technology. In addition, the subprogramme will provide policy advice and proposals on development strategies and public sector economics, foster improved performance of public policies, programmes and projects, and strengthen and capitalize knowledge networks in these substantive areas.

18.72 The subprogramme will continue to promote and support the setting up of new instruments for budgetary policymaking and evaluation and will disseminate sound results-based management practices in order to incorporate them into the public policy cycle. The Institute will continue to provide technical cooperation services to countries of the region on relevant issues and to promote the exchange of experiences and South-South cooperation. Similarly, ILPES will provide advisory services to local government bodies with regard to their development strategies and the training needs of their officials and will promote horizontal cooperation and exchange at the subnational level. Technological and pedagogical innovations will also be introduced to improve the quality of training and student access to instruction materials and information on the network. The extended use of the e-learning platform will strengthen the capacity of ILPES to expand its training activities and will further collaboration with other ECLAC divisions.

18.73 The main beneficiaries of the subprogramme are policymakers, officials and practitioners from public authorities of the countries of the region, especially those concerned with planning and fiscal management functions within government at both national and subnational levels. The outputs of the subprogramme will also be used by civil society institutions and business and professional organizations, as well as universities and other academic and research institutions. Efforts will also be made to develop and strengthen key partnerships with relevant multilateral development agencies in the region.

18.74 Lastly, member States will benefit from the increased visibility of the work of the subprogramme through the continuous updating and development of the Commission website and databases, and wide dissemination of its main publications and findings among policymakers, academics and other stakeholders at international events and key forums, both within and outside the region. A new scheme to follow up and evaluate the impact of ILPES training will be operative in the biennium.

Strategy

18.75 The Statistics and Economic Projections Division will be responsible for the implementation of the subprogramme. Given the interdisciplinary nature of statistics, the Statistics and Economic Projections Division will work in close collaboration with all other ECLAC offices and divisions.

18.76 The strategy for reaching the established objective will be based on three main lines of activities. The first is the promotion of best practices and the dissemination and use of internationally comparable methodologies. Seminars, courses and meetings will be organized and technical documentation will be prepared and disseminated. Secondly, specialized advisory and technical cooperation services will be provided under the subprogramme to strengthen the technical and institutional capacities of countries in the statistical field. Meetings and seminars will be organized to facilitate the sharing of experiences and promote horizontal cooperation. Support will also be given for the development of networks to strengthen the harmonization and coordination of statistical data and initiatives among countries. Lastly, the subprogramme will include activities aimed at increasing the methodological development and awareness of statistics in the region and at promoting initiatives leading to the development of region-specific indicators. The main direct beneficiaries of the subprogramme will be national statistics institutions, central banks and specialized governmental agencies in Latin American and Caribbean countries. Moreover, it is expected that the subprogramme will reach a broader audience in the private sector, academia and civil society.

18.77 Two important features of the subprogramme strategy should be stressed. On the one hand, activities will be carried out in close coordination with the Statistical Conference of the Americas of ECLAC. The activities of the subprogramme reflect the thematic priorities identified by the Conference, as it considers national accounts, economic and environmental statistics, the Millennium Development Goal indicators and social indicators. Each area includes conventional statistical development activities, as well as new methodologies demanded by Governments and civil society for addressing emerging issues. The activities under the subprogramme will be coordinated and harmonized with those of the Conference working groups. The subprogramme will act as coordinator of statistical activities at the regional and global levels, including joint activities with the Department of Economic and Social Affairs. Collaboration with other international agencies, including ILO, IMF, WTO and PAHO, as well as international expert groups, such as the Intersecretariat Working Group on National Accounts, and other regional commissions, is also envisaged. Furthermore, by actively participating in global events (especially, but not limited to, those of the United Nations Statistical Commission), the Division will convey the experience, special features and positions of the region to global forums.

18.78 The subprogramme also involves placing the pool of statistical and methodological information at the disposal of a wide range of stakeholders: government agencies of Latin America and the Caribbean, as well as business and labour organizations, technical and professional institutions with links to productive sectors, universities, research centres, regional and subregional integration bodies and other public or private entities that require comparable information on the countries of the region. In addition, the subprogramme seeks to disseminate economic, social and environmental data and indicators on a comparable basis and support other ECLAC divisions in the provision and analysis of statistics and data.

18.79 As regards the joint work with other ECLAC divisions, special attention will be paid to the implementation of gender-sensitive indicators in collaboration with the Division for Gender Affairs; support in the use of economic indicators in collaboration with the Economic Development Division; provision of data from household surveys and other social indicators to the Social Development Division; development of a broader range of statistical information on Caribbean countries in collaboration with the ECLAC office in the Caribbean; development of environmental indicators in collaboration with the Sustainable Development and Natural Resources Division; and the provision of relevant information to monitor the progress of the region towards achievement of the Millennium Development Goals.

18.80 Emphasis will also be placed on promoting the adoption of the new recommendations relating to the System of National Accounts in the region; improving basic economic statistics; facilitating the participation of countries in the international comparison programme; enhancing the systematization of environmental statistics; and developing poverty and social cohesion indicators.

18.81 Lastly, member States will benefit from increased visibility of the work of the subprogramme through the continuous updating and development of the Commission website and its online economic, social and environmental statistics and indicators database, CEPALSTAT. The main publications and findings will also be widely disseminated among policymakers, academics and other stakeholders at international events and key forums, both within and outside the region.

Strategy

18.87 Responsibility for the implementation of the subprogramme rests with the ECLAC subregional headquarters for the Caribbean, in close coordination with the rest of the ECLAC system. The strategy applied under the subprogramme will be focused on continuing to provide technical secretariat services and support to the Caribbean Development and Cooperation Committee, as a subsidiary body of ECLAC, in enhancing its relevance and role and in guiding its work in the region. The efforts under the subprogramme will also facilitate the active engagement of countries of the subregion in the follow-up to global conferences in terms of monitoring, evaluating and reporting on progress made on internationally agreed development goals, including those deriving from the Millennium Declaration.

18.88 The subprogramme will provide substantive programmatic assistance to support policymaking and action by Caribbean member States to enhance their response to a range of development challenges, including pressing economic, social and environmental issues, and to strengthen their resilience to external shocks.

18.89 To this end, the activities conducted under the subprogramme will:

(a) Focus on issues regarding financing for development, support for the development of capacity for market diversification and integration and trade opportunities to facilitate more effective assimilation of the Caribbean economies into the global economy;
